
Case Study Question	Syllabus Topic
A system shows unknown hidden programs communicating with external servers without user knowledge.	Backdoor attack (Trojans / Backdoors / Sniffer)
A website becomes unavailable after receiving huge traffic from many systems at once.	Denial of Service (DDoS attack)
A user tries multiple password combinations until one works successfully.	Password cracking / guessing
A system monitors changes on a website and alerts when updates occur.	Website watcher
An investigator traces a suspicious email to find sender details and origin path.	Email tracking
A web application allows attackers to manipulate database queries and bypass login.	SQL Injection / Authentication bypass
A logged-in session is stolen and reused without entering credentials again.	Session hijacking
A malicious script is injected into a webpage and runs when a user opens it.	Cross-Site Scripting (XSS)
A user is tricked into performing an unwanted action while already logged into a website.	Cross-Site Request Forgery (CSRF)
A security system is used to control and filter incoming and outgoing network traffic based on rules.	Firewalls
